It was an afternoon of December. Four junior students from the city of Linxia were taking a bus to school. Suddenly, something 1 happened. When the bus was near the Longwangmiao Station, it began to shake. The driver breathed painfully with his eyes almost closed. The bus was 2 and ran towards the opposite direction.

Sitting behind the driver, one of the students was the first to act. He rushed to move the driver's 3 away, and pressed hard on the brake(刹车) with both hands. At the same time, his two classmates turned the steering wheel(方向盘) to get the bus back to its way. Another student held the driver's shoulder and tried to 4 him up. Nervous but calm, they worked together and finally stopped the bus safely by the roadside. 5, all the 18 passengers in the bus were safe. And 6 of them were even hurt.

After that, they carefully helped the driver get off the bus. They used first-aid knowledge learned at school to 7 the driver and called 120. They didn't hurry to school 8 the driver was sent to the hospital. The news spread widely and everyone took pride in them.

Their act of 9 is like a shining light that makes something amazing happen. People think highly of them for their courage in the face of 10. The four students put what they had learned into practice, and show a sense of responsibility of Chinese teenagers!

Deep in the desert, a man has spent more than forty years solving the “illness” of ancient paintings.

His name is Fan Zaixuan. He is an expert at protecting and repairing wall paintings in the Dunhuang Academy(敦煌研究院). In fact, the “patients” are the ancient wall paintings. The wall paintings in Dunhuang Mogao Caves are beautiful. However, after thousands of years, their surfaces slowly come off and fall down, which makes people feel sad.

Fan Zaixuan works hard to repair these art works. For the peeling parts, he first adds special glue and smooths them slowly and carefully. It is more difficult to repair the broken areas. Workers must take away harmful salt that breaks the paintings. To solve this problem, Fan Zaixuan and his team have been working for eight years and finally found a practical way. They turned the harmful salt into water and developed new materials to take in the liquid(液体). So far, the research team led by Fan Zaixuan has repaired more than 500m² of broken wall paintings in Mogao Caves. These ancient treasures shine again and keep their beauty after thousands of years.

Fan Zaixuan says his daily work is to protect ancient wall paintings and keep their natural looks. To his relief, over the past forty years, he has trained hundreds of young workers for cultural protection organizations across the country. Now, a new team of repairers has joined in the repair work of these valuable paintings.

Fan Zaixuan has spent all his time and energy on his work. He protects the ancient art silently and has become a part of these wonderful paintings through time.
